As the auto party neared Wellington they met two hunters with two dogs and two lanterns, one of which was lit. The lanterns we mean. One of the dogs walked in front of the machine and was bumped off the highway. The men being angry, threw both the lanterns at the machine, one breaking the windshield, scattering glass over the occupants of the car, the other came flying thru the side curtain, just missing Mrs. Stroup and landed in the lap of Miss Bechtel, who was on the back seat, cutting her thumb and bruising the thumb joint, making it necessary to have a doctor dress it. Mrs. Rook who was riding in the front seat, was frightened almost into hysterics and had to be carried into the doctor's office. Other than a bump on the side of her head, she was uninjured. Mrs. Walters escaped without serious injury, although a piece of glass was taken from her face. The men who caused the rumpus were taken into custody by the deputy sheriff.
